Line 0260 Program Support

All municipalities report program support. Information on allocation drivers is provided for municipalities with populations of 100,000 or more which use the OMBI method of allocating program support to other functions. Municipalities with populations under 100,000 use the percentage of total Expenses method or modified percentage of total Expenses method.

In the OMBI method, an allocation driver is specified for each area of program support. The allocation driver is the type of unit that will be used to allocate Expenses for each area of program support to other sub functions in Schedule 40. For each sub function, the number of driver units is calculated as a percentage of total driver units. The amount allocated to a sub function for one program support area equals the percentage of total driver units times the amount to be allocated for that program support area. The allocation process is repeated for each area of program support. The total amount of program support allocated to a sub function equals the sum of the amounts allocated for each area of program support.

For more information on allocation methods, please see section 15 in the Introduction to the FIR instructions entitled, Allocation of Indirect Costs.
